EVERY SICK
LADY IN U. S.

Says Mrs. Wm. Hilliard, of Mountainburg, Arkansas, Should Take Cardui, The Woman's Tonic.

Mountainburg, Ark.—"After my doctor had done all he could for me," says Mrs. Wm. Hilliard of this place, "Cardui helped me so much."

"I had suffered from female complaint for six (6) years, but a friend told my husband about your medicine, Cardui, so I began to take it."

"It is a pleasure to me, to write in praise of this wonderful woman's tonic for it saved my life, brought me relief, and I am now in good health."

A tonic, taken in time, would save many a person's life—if a woman, a woman's tonic, Cardui—because it helps the system to ward off the attacks of disease.

It stands to reason that it is harder for any disease to get hold on a strong, well person, than on a weak, delicate one.

Some folks look as though you could knock them down with a feather and please is a good deal more dangerous than a feather.

So, remember please, that what you should do, if you are not up to the normal standard of womanly health, is: Take Cardui, the woman's tonic.

Consult your druggist. He will tell you. Do it today.

URGES CONTROL BY UNITED STATES

governors can only confer and recommend," he said.

The need and purpose of federal control of corporations, the secretary said, he believed to be "simply to place a private business company in its commercial activity precisely where the constitution undertook to put the citizens of the United States. The purpose is to organize companies that may engage in interstate commerce under regulations fixed by the federal government and free from the unnatural and uneconomical embarrassments which so far any state has been at liberty to interpose."

International Commerce.
Another phase of the question discussed by the secretary was the international commerce of the country. Up to the present time, he said, the country had rested on the belief that development of domestic commerce was sufficient. Other countries felt the need of international commercial development long ago and the United States, he urged, must do all that was necessary to meet what its competitors were doing in that line.

"We are now engaged in establishing relations with foreign countries," continued the speaker "looking for the opportunities of our commerce in their midst. We are shaping our treaties to secure open doors and equal rights with other countries. In what form shall this commercial enterprise make its appearance in other countries? If not in the form of the accepted corporate organization?

"Does it stand to reason that we can successfully depend upon a corporation large enough to engage in foreign business under federal protection, and at the same time too large to be admitted by most of the states composing our own union? Will it be seriously contended that we will be blind enough to engage in foreign business to the contemplation of the future of our foreign commerce in itself absolutely settles the need for an intelligent, bold and comprehensive scheme for the organization of commercial enterprise under the same authority under whose charge that enterprise is to go forward?"

State Legislation.
"Apart from all the embarrassments which antagonistic and conflicting state legislation has so far created to me that contemplation of the future of our foreign commerce in itself absolutely settles the need for an intelligent, bold and comprehensive scheme for the organization of commercial enterprise under the same authority under whose charge that enterprise is to go forward."

The secretary agreed that confusion no doubt would result in the states with the adoption of a federal corporation law and that serious question of taxation, but he urged that it should at all times be remembered that the creation of a federal corporation was within the control of the people of the United States. No hard and fast rule he said existed as to the manner in which taxes to be paid by such an organization shall be apportioned, but he anticipated no insurmountable difficulty to be presented in this matter with respect to the individual corporation, and he saw no reason why the federal corporation law should not provide for the assessment of tangible property, and for the taxation of shares in such manner, "that exact justice and protection will be afforded individual states and localities."

Thinks None Will Escape.
As to apprehension that a federal corporation statute would permit large concerns to escape some of the laws inhibitions provided against them, the secretary had no fear.

"If the mere amount of capital," he said, "is itself to be recognized as an objection, then there is no reason why the federal law should not fix such a limit as may be found reasonable and safe. But it is believed that the real objection to large corporations in our country goes to the monopolistic character of the concern, in that respect a federal corporation law would provide, in my judgment, infinitely more effective than have the spasmodic, inharmonious attempts of individual states."

GLAVIS UNDER HOT
CROSS-EXAMINATION

Declares He Does Not Believe Ballinger Is Square With Government.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Continuing his cross-examination of Louis R. Glavis at the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry today, counsel for secretary Ballinger drew from the witness the fact that up to the time Mr. Ballinger went out of office as land commissioner in March, 1908, there had been no evidence of fraud in the Alaska coal cases presented to the department.

The Cunningham "Journal," which contained evidence of an alleged agreement had not been found at that time. However, the witness declared Mr. Ballinger, in his opinion, had not acted as a man would if the property had been his own instead of the government's.

As to Mr. Ballinger's participation in the Wilson Coal company case, Mr. Glavis admitted that he had no first hand knowledge and had testified merely from hearsay. Mr. Vertess questioned the witness more closely than ever today, announcing that he was endeavoring to discover the motive of the witness as to whether it was innocent or malicious.

Attorney Brandeis rather heatedly replied that Glavis had no other motive than to tell the truth.

Ask Your Neighbors

So many people scattered all over the American Continent have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines that there's scarcely a hamlet where some of these grateful people are not to be easily found—ever ready to say a good word for the medicines which cured them and which very likely may cure you, if similarly afflicted. Look them up. They are walking advertisements for Dr. Pierce's medicines—ever ready to pass the good news along that these medicines care when many others fail. Little advertised NOW, because their record of 40 years of cures makes great displays of their merits unnecessary. The great American people, pretty generally know of their unequalled record.
